

Why It's Important

Hutchinson Community College EMS Continuing Education develops customized and focused training for individuals, departments and organizations with current science achieving learning objectives. Training is offered in both credit hour courses and Business & Industry customized classroom and onsite trainings.

Continuing education allows EMS professionals to stay current on the ever-changing trends and practice requirements of an EMS provider. It's important because it validates an EMS provider's knowledge and skill level.

Hutchinson Community College is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission (HLC), one of six regional institutional accreditors recognized by the United States Department of Education and the Council on Higher Education Accreditation (CHEA).
